Real religion

REAL RELIGION
Lesson for October 18, 1981
Bible Study Passage: Micah 6:3-4; 7-13
Introduction

Would the "Real religion" please stand out! In our age it is imperative that religion manifest itself in a demonstration of relevance. The church is called up to respond to the crises and complex problems facing our world today.

Unfortunately, there are cults and groups who seem to offer an alternative to the church or "organized religion," as some are wanton to call it. Perhaps such alternatives have sprung up because of dissatisfaction with a religious expression that speaks but does not act.

This week our lesson focuses upon the minor prophet with a major message. Micah describes the focus of true religion and the moving results of what transpires when sinful people encounter the loving God.

Micah's ideas of true religion is that which issues forth in justice and humility. Micah's emphasis is upon an ethical religion that expresses the mercy and love of God.

God's Complaint [Micah 6:1-7]

When things are not, going the way they should be, God demands a hearing with his people. He desires an accountability report of the people's actions as to why they have grown tired of him. "O my people, what have I done unto thee? and wherein have I wearied thee? testify against me" (Mic.6:1).

After all, Yahweh had delivered the people from the hands of their oppressors; he had raised up good leaders; he had made sure that escape from bondage and deliverance from Pharoah's armies was guaranteed. But now the people had turned their backs and neglected their duties and covenant requirements.

The people's reply seems to skirt the issues that God raises in his complaint. In fact, the people accuse God and argue that he is unjust and unfair. They soon discover, however, that God is not all that impressed with their se righteous efforts and moral observances. Worship attendance is not necessarily indicative of obedience.

Micah's Response [Mic. 6:8]

The prophet responds with a statement that has become much quoted and referred to. "...what doth the Lord require of thee....?" This question is perhaps the most important question we must reckon with. Everything pivots on how we answer this question.

The popular response would likely be, "Why to go to church and believe in God, of course." The Israelites responded, "blood and sacrifice!" But the message of God is plain, that is, ceremony is not enough to satisfy the demands of God. This is not meant to imply that worship and ceremony are wrong; it just isn't enough. The first and foremost demands of God are spiritual and moral, and apart from these the ceremonial actions have little or no meaning.

The Lord's Response :Mic. 6:8-13]

The requirements of justice, mercy and humility are God's desires for his people. God confronts his people with the commercial exploitation he sees among the homes and cities. Great wealth is obtained through false weights and measurements in the sale of goods. Thus, the business community came under attack because they seemed to make such a distinction between spiritual and material things. God is suppose to be Lord in the marketplace and in the Church.

The society in general was a shambles. God saw that throughout there was deceit and violence. There was no reliability in what people said, which created broken relationships and mutual distrust.

God's response to such sinful actions is judgment upon the nation and its people. Israel will suffer because of her sin. The people will live in continued frustraton as the things they desire the most-security, wealth, power-will elude them. In time to come the nation and its people will fall in utter destruction.

Destruction and frustration is always the ultimate and inevitable end of those who live in disobedience to God and who put their confidence in false gods and in the mockery of that belief by dishonesty and abuse of other people.

Dr. Trimyer is Chaplain at Burnham Hospital, in Champaign, Illinois (WLYP).

The many good sportsmen who have hunted Westvaco's Virginia Woodlands in the past can enjoy the privilege again this season.
Unfortunately, abuse by a few thoughtless people reflects poorly on all sportsmen and jeopardizes the availability of private lands for hunting and other recreation. Littering, destruction of property, road damage, infringements on our neighbors' property rights, and interference with our forest management activities will not be tolerated.
The future of hunting is in your hands. We encourage your support for Operation RESPECT and your cooperation to avoid landowner-visitor conflicts.
Have a safe, successful hunting season.

The Pastor Speaks

By LEE SEIBERT
Proverbs 15:29

Not too long ago, I became involved in what appeared to be a quickly developing traffic jam. As I sat in the middle of a four lane highway, I suddenly became aware of the fact that things were becoming rather cramped. I looked out ahead of me and saw someone taking his good old time, when suddenly there was a volley of horns all around me. As I watched the growing frustration on the people's faces, I turned on my radio just in time to hear the last line of a song say, "There's got to be a morning after."

You know, it doesn't matter if we are 3 or 103 and who and what we are; sooner or later we end up landing flat on our face. And as shameful as it is to say, "Then we turn to God."

What is the first thing we do whenever we have a problem? We turn to the first person that we think can help us, or try to find the easiest way out. And when we find that that doesn't work, we turn to the next way out. Until sooner or later we find our face to the ground or our back to the wall...and then we turn to God. When wouldn't it be easier if we turned to God in the first place?

Prayer like the word of God is sharper than any two bladed sword. Its just that sometimes, it becomes rather blunt from either misuse or no use at all.

God always answers prayer. He either says 'yes' or 'no', never 'maybe'. But so often, we don't have the patience to find out 'when'.

As a child of God, remember the wisdom and power of God keep the clear lines of communication open. For there is a God. A God in the midst of our lives, that walks with us and talks with us, and tells us we are His own. For we are His children and He is our Father.

Lee Seibert is pastor of Pamplin Methodist Charge.
